BABY'S KISS UNITES WIFE AND ACTOR IN CITY COURT

AL H. BURTON

BABY BURTON AND PARENTS.

Golden-Haired Boy of Three Discovers Papa; Non-Support Suit Is Dropped.

A baby's kiss was the boldest that came together two alienated parents, and in the courtroom where the mother had asked the father to answer to the charge of non-support.

Baby Burton is three years old, golden-haired and pretty. His mother, who came to Boston for the express purpose of having her father, Al H. Burton, arrested, brought him to the Municipal Court with her. He sat quietly beside his mother, staring with open-eyed wonder at the unusual sights of the room while Judge Wentworth heard the case that preceded his father's.

"Here's Papa," Baby Cries.

"Mama," he called back across the few intervening chairs. "Here's papa."

The father returned the kiss and then set the computer going down, fearful of the effect of the disturbance upon the decorum of the court.

The judge, the spectators and Judge Wentworth looked on with interest. There were tears in the mother's eyes. She kissed him and he kissed her. He looked, anguished into her arms, and with his tiny still smile with his father's face proved them to be mother.

"Here's papa," he said, in tones that could be heard all the way to the bench, where the judge looked gravely at the little fellow.

"My dear mother," said the father, "I have no objection to your bringing your child here, but I have no objection to your bringing your child here."

"My dear mother," said the father, "I have no objection to your bringing your child here, but I have no objection to your bringing your child here."

Hastens to Judge.

Still holding the baby tightly pressed to her arm, Mrs. Burton hastened to her attorney, B. A. O'Brien. She whispered to him, saying her eyes were with her husband. The judge looked gravely at the little fellow.

"My dear mother," said the father, "I have no objection to your bringing your child here, but I have no objection to your bringing your child here."

"My dear mother," said the father, "I have no objection to your bringing your child here, but I have no objection to your bringing your child here."

CARLTON SAYS BLUEBEARD HUGH WILL NOT HANG

New York's Alleged Slayer of Wives Identified in Chicago Murderer.

NOW AWAITS INDICTMENT

NEW YORK, July 28.—Frederick E. Carlton, whom Inspector Cross calls "Bluebeard Bluebeard," and who is suspected of murdering two wives, is very sulky concerning the fate of John Hark, and when he learned that the Chicago man had secured a reprieve, exclaimed:

"Good. If he was hanged, as I have heard, and I believe he was—he deserves it. Mark my words, they will never hang Hark."

Carlton said that the sympathy for Hark for the Chicago man was born partly of the fact that he had been a member of the police, and denied that he had ever had any acquaintance with him.

"Do you expect that you will be indicted for murder?" he was asked.

"Yes, I do," replied the prisoner. "They have trumped up enough points, I suppose, to indict me, but when I come to trial I will make the authorities look silly. I expect Cross is trying to make a reputation for himself at my expense. I have got an inside knowledge of the case."

"Covering Carlton's anxiety regarding the case with the Chicago Bluebeard."

"No wonder he was anxious to know that. He is in a plight very similar to that in which I am, and I am sure Inspector Cross had before him his file, to know that the alleged Bluebeard of Carlton, from his looks and who, in his examination by the police officials, is said to have contemplated Carlton in many particulars."

ANGERED AT LOSS OF HAWTHORNE PAPERS

NEW YORK, July 28.—The loss of the papers of Nathaniel Hawthorne, which were stolen from the Custom House or given away by officials, is a serious matter, and it is probable that an investigation will be conducted.

NO DECISION IN BROCKTON SCANDAL NOW

Judge Bixby Postpones Finding in Libel Charge Against Dwyer.

PUBLIC SURPRISE IS GREAT

BROCKTON, July 28.—It will be more than two months before the decision will be rendered in the case of William Dwyer, the editor charged with libel, in connection with the shocking action regarding the police department of this city. Judge Bixby, who has heard the case, has postponed the finding.

Many people were assembled in the court room to hear the verdict as to Dwyer's guilt or innocence. Associate Justice J. M. Flagg called Dwyer's case and the defendant's case, and the case was postponed until October 9, said Mr. Flagg.

Judge Off on Vacation.

It was later said that Judge Bixby had gone to Florida for a vacation.

No explanation was made as to whether the judge desired to go on the case, or whether he was on the case, or whether he was on the case.

Public Men Excited.

Judge Bixby's postponement of his decision has caused much excitement among the public men of Brockton.

MAUDE GONNE SAID SHE WAS RISK GODDESS

So Charges Her Husband in Divorce Suit.

SAYS HIS WIFE IS INSANE

FARIN, July 28.—Major MacBride, who is bringing suit for absolute divorce by his wife, the famous Irish actress, Maude Gonne, in his defense will charge that his wife is insane, imagining herself the incarnation of an old Irish goddess and having an unusual desire for solitude.

Maude Gonne, who defended herself in the famous divorce case, is content for Major MacBride.

At the next sitting of the court Maude will produce evidence to show that Maude Gonne claimed that she was a reincarnation of a goddess, while the Major was the incarnation of an ancient Irish hero. It will also be alleged that she promised that when she should become "queen of Ireland" she would make the well known Anglinville, Milverton, her "prize mansion."

These arguments are meant to show an indication of a mad woman's mind. It is also alleged that she has been very jealous against her husband, which facts concern the court. The case will be postponed until the next sitting of the court.

COURT STOPS CUTTING PARK

Lynn Mayor Had Defied Notice of Application for an Injunction.

LYNN, July 28.—Judge Bishop has granted a temporary injunction restraining the city from cutting City Hall square, taking a portion of the City Hall lawn at the corner of Stone Street. The injunction was granted on the claim that the square is a public park, and devoted to the use of the people, and that the city has no right to cut it without a vote of the people.

The injunction was granted at the instance of Lawyer John A. O'Brien, who served notice of application on the city and on the Board of Public Works. It was the intention to apply for an injunction prohibiting the work, and O'Brien said, if anything were done by the city, he would apply for an injunction.

The Board of Public Works, advised by the city attorney, refused to grant the injunction, and the city attorney refused to grant the injunction.

Mayor Eastman thought differently. He said that a notice from a lawyer as to what the latter intended to do was an order from the court.

The board refused to give the mayor any more work, and he then intended to stop the work. He then intended to stop the work.

When the court orders me to stop cutting the park, I will stop. I will stop cutting the park. I will stop cutting the park.

PICTORIAL BIOGRAPHY OF JOHN D.

50 AND 52 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JULY 20, 1905.

This Judge's Decision Should Be Taken for Granted

The individual, be he judge or other, who interferes with free speech encourages violence and is a dangerous citizen.

It Is Time for a New Declaration of Independence

The latter proviso is supposed to be out of deference to the delicacy of the American woman.

OFADS AND FANCIES"—A READER'S

It seems to me that to be mentioned in "Fads and Fancies" is equivalent to a confession of moral turpitude or personal cowardice. Respectfully yours,
